HAWES CONFESSES

That He Encompassed the Murder of His Wife

AND CLAIMS THAT JOHN WYLY Committed the Deed for a Consideration.

WYLY IS ARRESTED AT ONCE

And Taken to Birmingham for Trial.

RIPMINGHAM, Ala., February 6.-[Special.] Dick Hawes has made a confession-a full free and frank, clean breast of the horrible tripple murder, for which he is to hang the John Wiley, of Atlanta, killed Mrs. Hawes, May and Irene-so Dick Hawes says.

And he killed them for two hundred dollars. The confession was made last night between 6 and 7 o'clock to Mr. James Hawes and Sheriff Smith, and the story related to them was a thrilling, exciting one.

Mr. Jim Hawes has not seen his condemned brother since the Alabama supreme court confirmed the decision until yesterday. Immediately after Dick Hawes heard the court would not interfere, he swore that he would never hang. Then a short time afterwards a rope was found in his cell, and the impression went out that Hawes would cheat the gallows by killing himself.

This belief caused Mr. Jim Hawes to quit visiting the jail. He knew that his name has been drawn into the case two or three times and when he heard that his brother had threatened to kill himself, he remarked to a

"I shall not go to see him again, as much as I'd like too. If I should go and he'd kill himself, everybody would swear I gave him the poison or killed him. No, I wont take any more chances. I have had enough trouble for myself and family and I don't want any

It was a wise conclusion, too, for the map who has been made suffer so much for his brother's sins, and to it he adhered closely until yesterday, notwithstanding the condemned man's many requests for a visit. On Tuesday. last, Dick Hawes sent his brother a note, asking him to come to see him, and the officer who delivered the paper repeated the request. Mr. Hawes read it and hearing the message re-

"I'm afraid to go. If Dick was to kill himself they'd lay it on me."

"But Dick ain't going to kill himself," said the officer. "He has given that idea up, and is trying to meet his God squarely. He told me to tell you this, and, besides that, the death watch is so constant and careful that he can't

Mr. Hawes wanted to see his brother, and sent back a message that he'd call when he came in on his next trip. That trip brought him here Thursday morning early, and soon after breakfast he was at the jail. Sheriff prisoner and to Mr. Jim Hawes, too, received him pleasantly. The two gentlemen conversed a few minutes and then the sheriff ordered the jailer to let Mr. Hawes in.

"But I want you to go with me," said Mr.

"Oh, that isn't necessary," remarked the sheriff, indicating his confidence in the man. "Just go ahead. I ain't afraid to trust von." "No. that ain't it." said Mr. Hawes, "I want you to be present to see that I don't give Dick anything to kill himself with. Then, too, if he has anything to say I want you to hear it. The sheriff, more to accommodate Mr. Hawes than anything else, went into the jail, and there witnessed the most pathetic, hearttouchtng scene of his life, and heard the story of the moss heartless, inhuman murder ever

A description of that meeting between the brothers and the story the dying one told has been repeated to me. Here they are.

When the sheriff and Mr. Jim Hawes en tored the jail door, the condemned man was in his cell lying upon his bunk. Beside that bunk an officer was sitting in an easy chair reading a novel. Hawes's eyes were closed, and his hands were crossed upon his breast. His feet were close together, and just as far from his head as there are inches

But for his breathing he might have been taken for a dead man.

Mr. Hawes and the sheriff glanced through the iron bar a minute or two, neither uttering a word, They were both looking at the pris oner, and both wondering whether he would die carrying the story of his family's death

"Dick," said Mr. Hawes.

The prisoner heard his name, and recogniz-Ing the voice, sprang to his feet, exclaiming

Then rushing to the side of the cell he thrust his hand through tho bars, exclaiming: "I'm so glad to see you. I had begun to think you had deserted me, gone back on me like every one else has."

Then still holding his brother's hands the prisoner stepped back the full length of the two men's arms. Then he raised his hands, and his brother's too, then he lowered them, raised them again, pushed them apart, drew them together, playing and toying with them as though he had been a child. All this time he was looking his brother in the eye, smiling happily and listening to what was being said. And this is what his brother

"Dick, I have never gone back on you. You have gone back on yourself. Whe don't you open your mouth and tell us who did that you had just as well have staid away." He was offended; deeply offended, and his brother's heart bled for him. "Oh: well, Dick," he said, "we won't talk about it any more. Come sit down and let's talk of Willie; let's forget this hellish story and be happy together for an hour like we were when we were boys." Instantly the cloud went away from his face, and, with a happy smile, he sat down upon his bunk. His brother dropped into a chair just outside the cell, and through the bars Dick Hawes thrust his hand. With it he grabbed his brother's hand, and through the bars he drew it. Then, dropping it into his lap, he caressed it as fondly as he eyer caressed the haud of the woman for whose death he is

"And Willie, Jim; how is he?" he asked-"He's well, Dick, and happy. He is growing and doing well, and we all love him as we ove our own children. Do you want to see

The prisoner sprang to his feet almost yell-

"Want to see him! Want to see my boy! Oh, my God! Want to see my boy here in jail among sneak thieves, midnight burglars and red handed murderers!"

Throwing his hands to his head he strode up and down the sell a time or two. Then he stopped and placing his hand upon his brother's

"Jim-I'd-rather-see-Willie-deadthan-for-him-te-to-to-to come into this jail. Do you understand me?" The first part of the remark was in a slow neasured tone, and when he concluded the last four words were almost a yell. "Sit down, Dick; he shan't come," said Mr.

The prisoner sat down, and for a second there was a silence. Then Dick Hawes said: "And Jim, you and your wife love the little

"That we do, Dick, and we will always love

Then there was a silence of a minute. "Say, Dick." said Mr. Hawes, breaking the silence, "are you going to send that boy to that school? Are-you-going-to-givehim-to-that-priest?"

The question was out. Mr. Jim Hawes's mind was easier- He wanted to know whether he was to part with the boy he has learned to love so much, and he was afraid to ask the question-afraid because the answer might mean that parting. The prisoner dropped his head a second, and then raising it, said: "I have been thinking of it, Jim. and I have promised Father Daily that I would. They will take good care of him and educate him, and make a man out of him."

"So will I," cried Mr. Hawes, leaping up. "Yes, I know that, Jim. Do you want to keep him?" asked Dick Hawes.

"I want you to do what you think best with the boy, Dick," said the brother. "If you want to give him to the church, all right, and if you want me to keep him I'll do it."

"But, Dick," said Mr. Hawes, after a short pause; "Emma's people out in Colorado have written to us. They want the boy. We had a letter from them last week, and they want the boy. They tell me to come out and see how they are fixed, too, before I turn the child over to them.

"Well, we'll talk about that again," said Dick. "How is everything in Atlanta?"

"Oh, all right," answered Mr. Hawes. The conversation was beginning to lag. Evidently the brothers were thinking and thinking seriously. Finally Mr. Hawes said: "So, Dick, you won't tell me who killed Em

"Jim, before God I don't know anything about it. I guess, though, you are like everybody else. You think I did it."

"No, Dick," said the brother, "I never have thought you done it, but I have always believed you knew all about it; that you knew who did it, and maybe you helped to do it." "Jim, before God, I never touched a hair or their heads. I couldn't have done it. I loved those children too much," said Dick Hawes. "I believe it, Dick. But why don't you tell who did doit?"

"I don't know," he answered.

And then he walked away. Presently he came to his brother, saying: "Jim, I have told the truth."

"Dick, I wish to God I could believe it, but I can't. Think of the fix I am in. Here I am your brother, and I corried that boy away that night, and lots of people think I know all about it. Why, they talked about arresting me a year ago!"

"Arresting you! My God, man, what for?" asked Dick Hawes, straightening up.

"They thought I knew all about it, and-" "Thought you knew all about it! My God you never had anything to do with that, Jim." "Of course not, Dick. But if you die without telling who did there are many who will

"Oh, they can't, Jim," said the prisoner.

"But they will, Dick." "Yes, they will, Dick," said Sheriff Smith. and if you know anything you ought to make a clean breast of it, Dick, and save your brother here. He has been good to you." "I know he has been good to me, Smith," said the condemned man. "He raised me from my boyhood. He clothed me and he fed me, and then he sent me to school. Why, he passed wood on a Western and Atlantic engine at a dollar and a quarter a day and fed and clothed and schooled me out of that. But before God I do not know anything about it."

"Well, Dick, I must go," said his brother. Then Sheriff Smith opened the cell door and let the prisoner out.

For the first time in more than a year there was nothing between the two brothers. Dick Hawes raised his arms, with his hands extended, and rushed toward his brother. Mr. Jim Hawes opened his arms and in a second the brothers were locked in each other's Then Dick Hawes's head fell upon his broth er's shoulder.

The brother dropped his head upon the prisoner's shoulder, and in a second their sobs were heard all over the jail.

Sheriff Smith turned his back upon the picture. He bit his lip, swallowed his tongue and walked away, but the tears could not be kept back. For five minutes the two strong, stout men cried like children, then the prisoner

"If you have come to talk to me about that stepped back, and between a cry and attempt he walked across the cell. Coming back, he JOHN WYLY ARRESTED restarded not again. to laugh, Dick asked: "Jim, wh- wha- what's the matter?"

"Nothing, Dick, only I wish we were children again—only—only—only—I wish I was Just here Sheriff Smith, with kerchief in hand, walked up, saying: "Jim, I guess we'd better go. It is now twelve o'clock—dinner time—and you can come back this evening." "All right, Mr. Smith." Then, turning to his brother, Mr. Hawes

"Well, Dick, good-bye. I don't see any use in coming back this afternoon."

"Good-bye, Jim," said the condemned brother, dashing a tear from his eye and forcing a smile to his mouth. The brothers released hands and Mr. Jim Hawes started towards the door. The prisoner looked at his brother as he walked away, and in his face there was a lifetime work for an artist. He was standing perfeetly still. His breathing had stopped, and the only thing of life about him were his eyes. Suddenly, however, he sprang forward, calling:

"Jim, Jim. Brother, stop." Mr. Hawes stopped and, wheeling around,

"Well, Dick, what is it?" "Jim. Brother. Don't-don't-don't leave me. For God's sake don't go away. Don't leave me this way."

"Leave you this way! What do you mean?" "Mean? My God, man, what can I mean? I mean don't go away without forgiving me. "Forgive you, Dick? Forgive you for

The prisoner raised himself as though re covering from a shock of some kind, and said: "Nothing, except-except making people think that you know anything about this mur-

"Oh, that's all right, Dick. Never mind me. Take care of yourself and be ready to go. Don't try to kill yourself." "Jim, I ain't going to do that. But, Jim, if

Here the prisoner stopped, and, hanging his head, walked away. His manner indicated that there was some thing on his mind, and Sheriff Smith closed the main door again. Mr. Jim Hawes walked back to his brother, and taking him by the "Dick there is something you want to say. What is it. Tell me." "Give me twenty-four hours to study, and I'll tell you all." "No, Dick. I won't give you any time. If you want to tell me who, did that work, do it

"Jim, I can't. I can't," and the prisone wrung his hands in agony. "But Dick, you can. You must. Think of Just then the trusties at the jail began yelling dinner, dinner, dinner. The cries drove Hawes from his story, and stepping away he said: "Jim, old boy, there's nothing to tell. Go to your dinner, and come back this afternoon. I want to see you."

The two brothers shook hands, and as Mr. Hawes was stepping into the wheel which turned him out of jail, his brother said:

"Jim, wait a minute. Kiss me; we haven't kissed each other since we were children and said our prayers together at mother's knee." The two men embraced and kissed and then Mr. Jim Hawes walked out of the jail door, and the man who has been sentenced to hang on the 28th went back to his cell. As Jim Hawes came away from the jail his swollen, red eyes, and his face showed at he had been weeping, and naturally a onversation ensued. Finally, he recounted all that had passed, and spoke of the probable visit later in the day. About half past five he returned to the jail and at the door Sheriff

Smith was standing. "Dick has been asking for you." he said. Mr. Hawes passed in, and for three or four nours he remained in jail. Then about nine o'clock he and Sheriff Smith came out together. It required no contact with criminal work to see that they were both somewhat exercised about something. Naturally that something was the Hawes case, and following them I found that the union depot was their objective point. There Sheriff Smith asked: "When does the Montgomery train leave?" He received the infosmation and the two men separated. Then Mr. Jim Hawes was approached and after laying down the law of secrecy he said: "Dick has told the whole thing. He didn't kill Emma and the children, thank God." "Then who did kill them?" he was asked. Mr. Hawes hesitated a minute and then said

"I never did believe that Dick killed 'em but I always did believe that he knew all about it-that he knew who did so, and that maybe he had a hand in it. But, thank God he didn't have a hand in it further than know ing who did do it." "And who did do it then?" he was asked. "John Wiley." Mr. Hawes paused a second and then re-

"John Wyly killed them, Dick says, and he says Wily did it for $200."

"Where is Wyley?"
"In Atlanta or Montgomery. He is now on the Atlanta and West Point road and may be at either place. But Sheriff Smith has sent telegrams to both places to have him arrested. and I guess he is almost in hock now." "What does Dick say?"

"He says that he paid John Wyly two hundred dollars to put Emma and the two girls out of the way, and that he did it."

Mr. Hawes then recited his return to the iail. When he went in with Sheriff Smith. Dick Hawes was pacing his cell floor restlessly waiting for them. "Oh. Jim," he said, "you are here."

"Yes, Dick. What do you want? Anyhing?"

"Only to see you."
Then the three men began talking. For some time they discussed the crime, Hawes all along denying all knowledge of it. Finally, among other things, Mr. Jim Hawes said: "Dick, suppose twenty years from now Willie comes to me and says: 'Uncle Jim, the night mama and sister May and sister Irene were killed papa brought me to you. Then papa was hung, and now I want to know who killed them. You certainly know.' What

"My God, Dick, don't drive me mad," and

"Jim, don't you think I have a heart?" "I wish you did, Dick. I wish I could put my heart in you for just ten minutes. Then ou'd tell who did it." It was like a bombshell to Mr. Hawes and the sheriff when the prisoner thrust his hand through the bars, saying:

"Jim, I'll tell you who did it, and I tell you the truth, before God-the truth in the face of

"Who?" asked Mr. Hawes.

"Who did it, Dick?" echoed the sheriff. Hawes hung his head, bit his finger nails, and looked towards the ceiling. Then he looked down, saying:

"Who is he, Dick? Call his name." "John Wyly. Before God, John Wyly is

"Did Jule Wyly have anything to do with it?" asked Sheriff Smith. "How did John come to do it?" asked Mr. Hawes, in the same breath.

"If Jule had anything to do with it, I don' know it," he answered the sheriff. Then, turning to the brother, he said: "John Wily did it, because I paid him $200

The sheriff and Mr. Jim Hawes then asked the condemned man to tell the story in full. And here is the story he told, and it is as

Mr. Jim Hawes repeats it to me: "You say you gave John Wyly $200 to do the work, Dick." said Mr. Hawes,

"Yes." was the answer. "Well, tell us all of it," said Mr Hawes. The prisoner hesitated a minute and ther aid:

"Well, I had been engaged to that lady in Columbus and there never was a sweeter woman. Emma had promised me to go to her people in Colorado and I had given her the money. I was to put the two girls in the convent at Mobile."

"Why didn't you?" asked the sheriff, interwait and I'll tell you all. Well Thursday before I was married Emma was to give me the children and go. On that day I went to the house and she not only refused to go but refused to give me the children. I was to be married to a woman I loved the next Tuesday, and there was my wife. What was I to do? I was desperate. That day I met John Wyly, and, knowing him well, told him my trouble.

I was in deep trouble, and he said: "Dick, I can get 'em all out of your way." " 'How?' I said.

" 'Never mind,' was his answer. "Then I agreed to give him two hundred dollars to do it, and we parted. On Saturday night I went to the house again and tried to beg Emma to go away, but she refused to go. She, and May, and Irene were all in bed undressed, and I went away. On Monday I met John Wyley near that clothing store, and he

"'Dick, they'll never bother you again." "'Are you sure, John,' I said. "He started to tell me all about it and I told him not to do it. That night I went around by the home and it was all dark. Then I went to Fanny Bryant's home, and that was dark, "What did Fanny Bryant have to do with it?" asked the sheriff. "I don't know, said Hawes. "Then I got on the train and went to Colum bus and got married, and that's all I know." "But Dick," said Mr. Hawes, "what about your being on that dummy with May?"

"So help me, God, I wasn't there." "Dick, is this the truth?" asked Jim Hawes. "Jim, I expect to hang, and if that rope was around my neck now I'd say it was the truth.' "Who helped John W:

"Before God, I don't know." That was all Hawes knew, and upon it tclegrams were sent to Atlanta for Wyly's arrest, and it is now known here that he has been arrested, and will be brought to Birmingham The confession has been gqarded very care fully here, and only a few know of it at all. No one knows the full text, as Mr. Hawes and Sheriff Smith would not talk much, and are now out of town So again THE CONSTITUTION leads all other in the Hawes tragedy. It is the only paper printing the confession as it dropped from Hawes's lips last night. The confession has a two-fold appearan-here, to those who have an inkling. Some believe it true. Others think Hawes is talking to secure onger lease on life He is to be hung on the 28th, and if he goe who is there here to testify against Wyly. Won't the governor commute his sentence s that he may go before the grand jury to secure true bill against Wyly? Then won't his life be prolonged and his evidence given in court? Or will the governor let him hang and have his statement taken as the statement of a man n the presence of death? From the inception of the case there have been many who thought Wyly knew some thing, but he has persistently denied everything. While he was here in jail he and Hawes had many quarrels, and today Hawes abuses him terribly. I have known Wyly a long time and apart from the color of the eves and hair and beard he and Hawes are very much alike. Five pounds would cover the difference in their weight, and a half inch in their height. Five weeks ago I saw Wyly girl of six years. They were on the corner of Calhoun and Houston, and he said: "I declare I don't know what I shall do. Everywhere I go to get work they ask me about that Hawes trouble. As true as there is a God in Heaven I don't know anything about it but still it keeps me out of work and I don't know how to fill this baby's with his wife and child, a beautiful, bright mouth and its mother's." Three days later Wyly secured a position on the Georgia Pacific as a freight conductor and last Sunday he said:

possessed as if he were at perfect liberty to go "Thank God I have struck it and wife and baby won't suffer now. I found a friend in Mr. Tyler of the West Point road, and now I am a conductor on a freight train. I know how to run 'em, too, and you watch me. In a month I'll have a glass cab." "What's a glass cab?" I asked him.

"A passenger train," he said. Wyly may be guilty and he may not. His arrival here will bring up the Hawes tragedy again. E. C. BRUFFEY.

AT THE INSTANCE OF SHERIFF SMITH, OF BIRMINGHAM.

Going Out on His Train on the Western Road, He Is Arrested by Detectives Cason and Green.

John Wyly spent the night in the captain's room at the stationhouse. His wife and little boy shared his confine ment and several policemen were on guard Yesterday morning Jim Hawes went to Chief Connolly and asked him to arrest John Wyly, explaining that Wyly was im-plicated in the murder of the Hawes family, and certain developments nspired that warranted his apprehension. Chief Connolly refused to arrest him without some authority from the officials in Birmingham. Hawes then telegraphed to Birmingham, and about noon a dispatch came to Chief Con-nolly from Sheriff Smith, asking that Wyly be arrested, if in the city.

Detectives Cason and Green were put on the case, and they learned that Wyley was just taking out a freight train on the Western road, where he holds a position as freight conductor. They went to the yards, and the train was just pulling out for Opelika.

They boarded the cab and rode to the point where Wyly was waiting with his way-bills to board the train. Detective Cason stepped off the cab and explained the object of the arrest, and Wyly quietly turned over his way-bills to another man and submitted to the arrest. "I am ready to go with you," said he, "and there need be no expense for a requisition, for I will go to Birmingham alone, if they want

He was carried to the stationhouse and locked up in the captain's office and a guard placed over him. That was about 2:30 'clock, and in a short time two dispatches were received, one from Sheriff J. S. Smith, who had gone to Montgomery to intercept him, and another from Deputy Sheriff T. S. Smith. of Birmingham; both asking that he be held until they could arrive.

Chief Connolly dispatched! Deputy Sheriff Smith at Birmingham, that Sheriff Smith would come after the prisoner from Montgomery, armed with all the necessary papers

WYLY TALKS.

"Why," said Wily, "this is the fourth time I have been arrested on that Hawes matter. Twice I was arrested and detained at the stationhouse, shortly after the tragedy. The third time I was carried to Birmingham and kept in jail for about two months, after which I was released on my own recognizance, and returned to Atlanta. They told me to come back and attend the September session of the superior court, and I went. The case was nol

rossed, and I came back to Atlanta, feeling that I was done with the case, once for all.'

"What about this arrest-you know the ac-"Oh, of course, Jim Hawes came and told me of the charge; that I had been accused of being the murderer of Dick Hawes's wife and children. This is the fourth time I have been arrested, and I am ready and willing to go at any moment to Birmingham. I want a thorough investigation and a speedy trial. Just as soon as I can get my witnesses together I will be able to disprove any charges that Dick Hawes may have made, or may make. Why, when I was there in jail he frequently re-marked to me that Fannie Bryant was the guilty party. I am hardly surprised at his trying to implicate somebody, for I am satisfied he did the work by himself, and on account of my having been arrested and confined in jail there, he has trumped up some story implicating me so that he may gain a few days more of life. He is one of the biggest liars in the world, and would implicate anybody to save himself from the gallows, even for a few hours. Still, I don't believe he will get on the gallows and say that I had any knowledge of the crime." "Do you feel any uneasiness?" "Not the least. I know nothing of the matter, and can prove that I had no whatever. All I connection with it want is to get rid of it as soon as possible. Why, my wife and I were talking over the matter yesterday, and sympathizing with Hawes in his despondency over his approaching death. Had I been guilty of any knowledge of that crime I have had plenty of time to get away, and I should have long ago put miles and miles between myself and the scene of that

PREVIOUS TO THE MURDER.

"When did you see Hawes last before the murder?" "On Saturday before he was married I saw him in Birmingham. He told me he was going to get married. I asked him where was his wife and children. Because Ben Butterworth Alluded to the Chicago Convention.

WASHINGTON, February 7 .- During the balot-box investigation Mr. Butterworth was called to the stand, and said he knew nothing about the contract. He also said that in justice to himself and Governor Foraker he wanted to make answer to the question asked him by Mr. Turner as to whether there was any fric-tion between himself and Foraker. He did

They had criticised each other and were not on such affectionate terms as to be in constant communication with each other. As to the Chicago convention, that was a matter between Sherman and Foraker.

This remark evidently angered Foraker, for, half rising in his seat, he exclaimed:

"So far as the Chicago convention is concerned, I am prepared to meet what anybody may say with the aid of a few letters I have. I do not propose to be aspersed here, of anywhere else, about Chicago. I have heard all I want to hear of it, here and in Ohio. By the best men in the republican party at the Chicago convention, I can refute any aspersions any man can make; and I have heard this thing for the last time without resenting it. The chairman restored good humor by re-marking that he hoped Chicago would not be mentioned again except in connection with the mentioned again except in connection with the world's fair.

The Work of Rescuing the Abersyctan Col-London, February 6 .- The work of removing the bodies of the miners who lost their lives by the explosion in the colliery at Abersyctan yesterday, is being carried on as rapidly as possible. Already one hundred bodies have been taken from the pit, and it is believed that about thirty more yet remain there. The ventilation of the pit has been restored and this greatly facilitates the efforts of the workers. A very pathetic incident in the work of rescue was the finding of the bodies of a father and his five sons lying in a group. The Sun's Cotton Review.

New Nork, February 7.—Futures advanced eighteen to twenty points on this crop, closing at a net rise of sixteen to seventeen points on this crop, and six to ten on the next, after very spirited speculation in which the bulls were victors. Owing to a decided advance in Liverpool and New Orleans, a firm southern spot market, the rise in spot cotton here, heavy buying by the south, and considerable covering by the local shorts, as well as some foreign buying, though the Greeks sold. Cotton on spot was three-sixteenth cents higher. Riotous Demonstrations in Portugal. Riotous Demonstrations in Portugal.

OPORTO, February 7.—Students in this city today made a demonstration in fa vor of the poet, Anthero Quental, president of the Northern Patriotic league. They became riotous, and smashed the windows of the leading social club because it had not expelled Englishmen belonging to it and had admitted others. Progressive and republican papers in Portugal continue to violently attack England.

BUCK IS SATISFIED

BECAUSE HE HAS FORCED NEGFOES UPON HIS NEIGHBORS.

WANAMAKER HAS HEARD THE NEWS | THE WORST STORM FOR MANY YEARS

And Becomes a Little More Polite to the onthern Members-The Cheap Bargain Counter Gets Him.

Washington, February 7 .- [Special.]-Carpet-bagger Buck has gone home. As he got on the train this morning there was a sort of self satisfied smile on his face, and he looked as happy as any one could whose only friends consist of those he can put into office. When asked why he desired to inflict the people of Americus with the negro Dudley, he pretended to know nothing about it, and asked if it could be true that Mr. Harrison had made such an appointment. However, he ed somewhat, and acknowledged know ing all about it, when faced with the statement that Senator Colquitt had asked him Senator Colquitt had asked him yesterday what he meant by having a worthless negro postmaster put in at Americus. Then he attempted to excuse himself by stating that he had recom mended Dudley months ago, but had said nothing recently.

As a matter of fact, the carpet-bagger's visit to Washington at this time has been to see that a number of Georgia negroes are provided for, the leading ones being Dudley and Mat Davis. FORCED TO COMPLY.

Indeed it is said among the Georgia republican contingent here, that the leading negroes of Georgia have told him emphatically if they are not provided for they will oust him from his throne of power, which means that they will combine against him, and send a negro in his place to the next republican convention. Buck could not stand this, and consequently, went down into his pocket and scraped up enough cash to buy a ticket to Washington. Arriving here, he went immediately to work to have Mat Davis and David A. Dudley made postmasters at Athens and Americus, respectively. Inci-dentally he indorsed again the same candidates for supervisors of the census whose names were printed in this correspondence recently. He has gone home satisfied that everything is fixed.

WANAMAKER'S CHANGE. The news that nearly all Georgia is up in arms against Merchant Wanamaker, and will probably boybott his bargain counter, reached the cars of that official this mornand had its effect, for when Judge Crisp called to protest against Dudley's appointment this afternoon, he was particularly polite and courteous. He had thrown aside that sneering manner with which he re ceived Mr. Carlton the other day. Indeed, he told Judge Crisp if the charges against the negro contained in Mayor Felder's dispatch could be proven he would endeavor to have the nomination withdrawn. He even sent to the senate and asked that the consideration of Dudley's nomination be postponed for a few days. Judge Crisp - feels hopeful that the nomination will be withdrawn. Rather than have his bargain counter boycotted, "Cheap John" Wanamaker would probably do so, but Harrison will have a word to say about it, and Buck has urged Dudley's appointment, on the grounds that he was an original Harrison man at the Chicago convention, and that the next Georgia delegation can't be solid for Harrison without him. It is doubtful if the little man in the white house will interfere.

ANOTHER ADVERTISEMENT. Wanamaker can find more ways of adver-tising himself than any other man in America. Only the other day he slandered the south, and made a statement which he knew to be false. to the effect that it would not be safe for him, a northern republican, to go to Athens, while today his organ, the Evening Critic, comes out making him a good and true Christian. It says he was the cause of Sam Randall's conver. sion, and it was he who persuaded the great Pennsylvanian to join the church. It also states that he (Wanamaker): "Is clamoring for the credit to which he feels he is honestly entitled. He considers that the understanding was of no minor importance, and that the world should know that it was he and no one else that accomplished

Continuing, it says: "He would visit Mr. Randall's home almost every day in the week, and invariably orthodox Christianity was the main topic of conversation. At first Mr. Randall was in-clined to turn the conversation in some other channel, but he gradually submitted to Mr. Wanamaker's Christian influence, the result of which is known."

of which is known."

GOFF'S LITTLE JOKE.

General Nathan Goff, the defeated republican candidate for gubernatorial honors in West Virginia, called on Congressman Amos Cummings yesterday and said jocularly: "Cummings, I wish you would add an amendment to your bill to erect, a statue to Tilden with the incription, "Elected president but not seated," to the effect that a similar statue be erected to me bearing the inscription. "Elected governor." me bearing the inscription, 'Elected governor of West Virginia but not seated.'"

A BLIZZARD RAGING IN THE NORTHWEST.

Heavy Snow Storm in Pennsylvania and Vir-ginia—Several Lives Lost by Falling Buildings—Floods in Oregon.

PITTSBURG, February 7 .- A heavy snow and sleet storm began here shortly before noon, and the ground is now covered with several inches of snow and hail. This is the first snowfall of the winter. So far the sleet has snowfall of the winter. So far the sleet has not seriously interfered with telegraph service. In this city the snow has blockaded many of the streets and stopped traffic, while telegraph and telephone wires are breaking down under the heavy weight of ice with which they are coated. In the mountains the storm is raging with terrific fury, and reports are coming in of serious damage to property. At Biairsville, Pa., a large glass factory was demolished by the wind. Three men were killed, two of them members of the firm. The Warren glass works at Uniontown were also wrecked. Coke manufacture in the region around Uniontown and Connelsville was almost entirely stopped, and much damage was done to tirely stopped, and much damage was done to the coke works. The wind was the greatest factor in the mischief. Hundreds of buildings in this end of the state have been damaged or demolished. Telegraph, telephone and electric light wires are badly demoralized.

THE BLIZZARD IN MINNESOTA. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., February 7.-A Journal's Stephen special says: The worst blizzard within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant is raging. The wind is from the north, and the air is a cloud of snow. The mercury registers ten degrees below zero, and it is growing colder.

An Attempt to Frustrate the Sale of Property

An Attempt to Frustrate the Sale of Property for a Navy Yard.

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—A village of mushroom growth arose on the banks of the Savannah near Fort Jackson Wednesday night. When the sun sank Wednesday evening the fort was the only building on the river's south bank for a long distance either east or west. Thursday morning half a dozen cottages dotted the bank. A western mining town never sprang m. so suding half a dozen cottages dotted the bank. A western mining town never sprang up so suddenly. The cottages are occupied, and the tenants have instructions to hold them, unless the guns of the fort are turned on them. Electric light works and street cars have not yet been introduced, but if the village continues to grow as rapidly as it started off, all these things may be expected before the order than the continues. It started off, all these things may be expected before the end of the month. The houses were sent down from the city on boat by Captain James McAlpin, and put on the site which Captain D. G. Purse had selected for a navy yard. It will not be at all surprising now if the government goes somewhere else for a navy ready.

Deptford plantation was bought four years ago by Captain, Furse and Mr. J. C. Rowland from Carmichael, who had bought it from the Habershams. The deed of the present holders includeded all the river front from the Savannah, Florida and Western property to St. Augustine Creek. Four miles of that front is in very deep water. Captain McAlpin claims a part of this river front, and he has taken possession of certain lots. Neither Captain Purse nor Mr. Rowland learned of the village which had sprung up until today. Both sides are preparing for a battle, which will be fought in the courts.

THE TWO MURDERERS

Who Are to Be Hanged in Perry on Thursday

Next.

Perry, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—The gallows for Johnson and Butt has been erected in the jail yard, and is simple and sure, standing on a platform on the same level with the murderers. The sheriff will be directly behind them. He will grasp a lever with his right hand, and at the proper time will push it smoothly forward. This will withdraw the support from beneath the door upon which the condemned men will stand, and through the trap they will drop to death. A weight below will hold the door stationary when it falls.

CLOSED IN BY A HIGH WALL.

The gallows is being enclosed by a close wall twenty feet high, and the execution will be strictly private, except to the relatives of the condemned men, guards selected by the sheriff, physicians and reporters. To provide certainly against any attempt to rescue the murderers that might be made by their negro friends, Sheriff Cooper has provided for the presence of twenty members of the Perry Rifles and about thirty private citizens as the special guard. HIS WIFE'S SISTER

POSSESSED GREAT CHARMS FOR HIM.

A Domestic Scene in Which the Husband Observes the Familiarity Between His Wife and Her Brother-in-Law.

Madison, Ga., February 7.—[Special.— Sheriff J. A. Hilsman returned today from Sheffield, Ala., bringing with him as a pris-oner, E. O. Owens, a young farmer of this county, who recently cloped with the wife of George Hough, his neighbor and brother-in-law.

THEY MARRIED SISTERS.

Owens and Hough married sisters, Misses Cochrans, daughters of Mr. James Cochran, of Morgan county. For some time all things moved along smoothly, and four little ohildren

Morgan county. For some time all things moved along smoothly, and four little children played around the home of Owens. For the past few months George Hough noticed that Owens was especially fond of visiting him at his home, and always seemed happy in the presence of his (Hough's) wife. This caused Mrs. Owens to become jealous, and to keep peace in the family Hough told Owens to cease his visits to his (Hough's) home, as he thought it best. For a time Owens ceased his visits.

At length one night a short time ago Owens and another young man called at the home of George Hough, both in an intoxicated condition. Hough and his wife took them in and gave them supper. After remaining a short while, the young man started for home, Owens having concluded to spend the night. Hough agreed to accompany the young man, whose name your correspondent did not learn, past a very deep gully near his home, and to pilot him safely by. Returning Hough cautiously crept up to the door of his house, peeped through a crack, and the scene which met his gaze almost made him stagger. There by the fire sat his own wife, whom he had loved and trusted for years, and near her sat Owens, his arms around her waist, and he was just in the act of kissing her.

The IRATE HUSBAND.

Throwing open the door, Hough rushed in and got his shotgun and aimed it at Owens's head. The gun refused to fire, as it was not loaded, and Owens escaped. The next morning Hough's wife left him, and said she was going to Macon to visit relatives. Owens also left home the next day, and it is supposed joined Mrs. Hough at Macon.

joined Mrs. Hough at Macon.

FURSUIT OF THE PAIR.

Hough, together with Mr. James Cochran, tracked the couple to Sheffield, Alabama. A warrant, charging Owens with desertion, was sworn out against hm, and a day or two ago Sheriff Hilsman left Madison for Sheffield, where the officers in that city had Owens in keeping for him. Today the sheriff returned, bringing Owens, and accompanied by Mrs. Hough. Tonight Owens occupies a cell in the county jail, and Mrs. Hough is staying at the boarding house of Mrs. Wade in this city. Unless Owens gives bail, he will remain in jail until March court convenes, to await his trial.

A BLACK POSTMASTER

Raises the Opposition of the People of Americus.

Americus, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]— The most intense indignation was aroused here today, upon receipt of the news from Washtoday, upon receipt of the news from Washington, announcing the fact that Dave Dudley had been appointed for postmaster of Americus. Dudley is the leader of a faction of the colored republicans of this district, but it has been believed heretofore that he would be satisfied with a subordinate position in the division of the spoils, and that the present incumbent would serve out his full term. Dudley is a negro of very ordinary intelligence, and no character whatever; and so obnoxious is he to the colored, as well as the white people, that any other negro in the state would have been preferable to him. He was a delegate to the last Chicago convention, and voted for Harrison, but it is said that his election thereto was obtained through fraudulent methods. There are several white republican applicants for the Americus postmastership, in view of which fact the appointment of Dudley would be all the more insulting to the intelligence of this city and section. It is the earnest hope of every business man and the citizens of Americus generally, both white and black, that our city may by some possible means be spared the insult threatened. Abundant evidence of Dudley's incompetency for the position will be sent to Washington. ington, announcing the fact that Dave Dudley

At the couclusion of this lecture, Professor Windsor will examine several young ladles and felect husbands for them from the audience.
Remember, these entertainments are Those who cut timber in the winter months have had so stop work simply because they could not get their product to market. Vast piles of logs are waiting for the rain that will fill up the river sufficiently to permit of floating them down to Darien. The farmers are also unable to plow and get ready for the spring planting, on account of the hardness of the ground.

The Plans of Mr. Toombs DuBose

The Plans of Mr. Toombs DuBose.

Washington, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]
Mr. Toombs DuBose has had some strong in ducements offered to him to publish an alliance paper. Mr. DuBose is personally a popular man in Wilkes county, and around it, and any enterprise of the kind to which he would fairly devote work and attention, would receive a generous backing and secure much advertising. He has taken this into consideration.
A few close friends of his have, however, been trying to deter him from this, and have so far succeeded that he has gone to some other work (or will as soon as he recovers from the grip.)
which, for the present, puts off the newspaper enterprise. It may be resumed at some not enterprise. It may be resumed at son enterprise. It may be resumed at some not distant day. He can, at any time, count on the same backing. Knowing these facts, your correspondent has said nothing of Mr. Dubose's plans. As they have been published, it is well to state this much.

An Accidental Shot.

Maynesbono, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]— Master Frank Gray, a youth about sixteen years of age, and son of Mr. Simon A. Gray, a prominent merchant of this place, shot himself accidentally on Saturday evening. He and a few friends were out bird hunting, and in his effort to climb a fence very hurriedly, the gun was discharged accidentally, and the charge passed under his arm, tearing away a part of the muscle of the upper part of the left arm. The boys with him tied a handkerchief around the arm to stop the flow of blood, and hurried to town with him.

A New Depot in Athens.

A New Depot in Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—The Covington and Macon railroad authorities are having the ground cleaned for the erection of a new depot to cost fifty thousand dollars. It will be built on the most modern and convenient plan and will be a commodious and elegant building. Rumor has it that the Georgia, Carolinia and Northern will also be connected with this depot, and will form a through line to Macon, there to connect with the Georgia Southern and Florida.

Cotton Runs Up in Augusta.

Augusta, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—The cotton market took a lively spurt today, and closed at 10 9-16 for middling. The supply is not large, and local mills have not yet bought more than half their stocks for the year. Cotton men predict cleven cents will be reached this scason in Augusta for middling.

Dawson, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—Editor E. L. Rainey, of the Dawson News, is the happy father of an eleven-pound girl.

The Chennys Afflicted. Bremen, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—Dr. I. N. Cheney has been sick several days with pneumonia. He is some better now. Miss May too has sore eyes—a very common affliction here now.

ATHENS, Ga., February [7.—[Special.]—The board of education of this city was reorganized last evening by the election of Professor D. C. Burrow as president, to take the place of Professor Andrew J. Cobb, who retired.

George Cater, of Clayton County, Suspended by a Rope.

Jonesboro, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—
George Cater, a farmer living four miles west of Jonesboro, committed suicide by hanging this morning. He arose from his bed about 4 or 5 o'clock, and from his actions his wife suspected something wrong with him. She called her son, who, on going out, found his father hanging by the neck in a shed adjoining his barn. He was dead before he could be cut down. The cause is not known.

The Piedmont Institute.

The Piedmont Institute.

ROCKMART, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—
Under the management of Revs. E. W. Ballenger and G. J. Orr, of the North Georgia conference, the new Piedmont High school, of the Rome district at Rockmart, has opened with most flattering prospects. Occupying temporary and inadequate apartments, and not being able to accommodate many applicants (until the institute can be erected), they enrolled over one hundred pupils the first day. With the wise and efficient supervision of Mr. Ballenger the citizens of Rockmart and of the Rome district are assured of the most gratifying results. This noble institution was practically conceived and brought forth in his consecrated mind and heart, and nothing but success can follow his Christian zeal and energy. The plans and specifications of the handsome institute, together with the president's home, halls, dormitories, etc., are now in the hands of the building committee, and will soon be in course of erection.

A Rare Old Paper. A Rare Old Paper.

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]—Captain George L. Summey, of this place, has an illustrated paper (The Constellation) published by George Roberts, New York, July 4, 1859. It is an eight-page affair, with thirteen columns to the page. When spread out it measures 16g feet long and 11g feet wide. Captain Summey says he thinks there are but two others in existence, one in the Young Men's library in Atlanta and the other in Macon.

Will Lose His Hand.

TY TY, Ga., February 7.—[Special.[—At Coleman & Park's turpentine farm, near this place, yesterday, Walter E. Hamilton was out lying boxes, and Will Davis, a negro boy cutter, gave Hamilton some impudence, when Hamilton hit him with his hand. The negro, who had a sharp ax at the time, struck at Hamilton, who caught the blow with his hand, nearly severing the hand from his wrist.

All honor to her merchants for their resolution All honor to her merchants for their resolution. If the love of the postmaster-general for the nigger is as great as he would have them believe, why not put a few of them as clerks behind his five and ten-cent counters? That, however, is one thing that John Wanamaker has not moral courage to do. I hope the boycott will go on. Months ago I resolved never to buy any more dry goods from his house, and every southern merchant should do the same. The loss of the almighty dollar will ultimately touch the soft side of even John Wanamaker.

Foraker's Fate.

Foraker, the celebrated Ohio statesma continues to remain in considerable trouble. We believe it was Editor Halstead who ran his good right hand through the back of a sedan chair and remarked in a casual way that Foraker courted investigation, and that he would come forth from the fiery ordeal of an investigation with a white standing-collar and a clean shirt front. The investigation has been going on in an intermittent way for some time, and every witness that knows anything about the matter at all has given Mr. Foraker a black eve.

We have been told by Wood what we already knew before, that Foraker was warned that the ballot-box papers were a forgery before he gave it out for publication in Editor Halstead's esteemed newspaper. Wood's testimony, taken in connection with his character, was not worth much, but, taken in connection with the well-known facts of the case, and with the stupid and contradictory explanations made by Foraker to Mr. Halstead, it was very important, indeed. In fact, there was no doubt in the minds of those who heard Wood's testimony delivered full in Foraker's face but believed that he was telling the truth. Moreover, Wood has a wife who seems to take a good deal of interest in her husband's career. She showed her interest by going on the stand as a witness, and her testimony supplied some of the missing links so far as Foraker is concerned. She told how the great and good governor, through one of his henchmen, sent her husband substantial sums of money even after Mr. Halstead had exposed the forgery, and how he continued his welcome contributions even after Wood had been taken into custody.

In short, Foraker was led into the hole he nad dug for Ben Butterworth, and he fell in with a thud that was heard all over Ohio and the other states of the union.

We take this oceasion to renew to Editor Halstead the assurance of our distinguished consideration, and to inform him that he has been in cahoot with a very wicked partner. He should draw out, and write up the whole affair for the New York Ledger, under the head of a "Tour of a Journalist."

The Ax Trust.

News comes from Pittsburg of a new trust that has a peculiar interes to a large sec tion of Georgia. The American Ax and Edge Tool company, with a capital of $4,000. 009, has bought all the works of the kind in the country, and will operate them under the management of their former owners, of course, subject to the control of the main of-The concern altogether will employ ten thousand men and will have a complete monopoly of the ax and edge-tool trade of the United States.

The usual statement is made that they will use their power only to effect greater economy in production, and not to raise the prices of goods. If the common course of trusts is followed this will not be the result

The bearing of this combination upon Georgia industry is the fact this state leads the world in the production of naval stores nd great numbers of axes have to be bough for the use of turpentine boxers. A few months ago the shortage of axes, due to the destruction of a number of factories by the Johnstown flood, threatened to embarrass very seriously the turpentine operations in Georgia. We have heard nothing of it of late and it is likely that the farms got enough axes to get to work. If the new combina tion should raise the price of axes very much it might affect somewhat the cost of produc-

Our Relations With Canada. The recent discussions of this subject at the Nineteenth Century club has put the matter more clearly before the people than

There might be no great difficulty in the fusion of the English speaking portion of the dominion with the people of the United States. but there would be trouble with the French. They now have a vested right to use their language in the processes of law, and as they have vehemently resisted any proposal to do away with the use of French in Quebec, they would not care to give it up if they came into the United States. They would be very likely to make troublesome demands upon the public schools and other institu tions to whose support they would be asked to contribute. There are indications that they are not averse to association with Americans, even with the descendants of the Puritans; but to New England, they carry their ideas with them, and they will be likely to assert their nationality as persistently in the north as in New Orleans, where their language is in common use and their laws are in force throughout the state.

The taking in of a country full of people wedded strongly to their own ideas, is a question beset with difficulties, but not without some argument on both sides. The Norman invasion and the consequent infusion of a new blood was a cause of much trouble and confusion for a time, but in the long run it added richness to the English language and literature and strength to the national char-

When we talk about taking different peo ple into the union we sometimes fail to realize how elastic is the system of government bequeathed to us by the framers of the constitution. The scheme of federation and home rule that admits of the dwelling of puritan and cavalier under the same governmental roof, will take in almost any other type of men. With a system not half so ear home rule as ours, England is able to hold together an empire which includes races almost as incongruous as the Caucasian and the African.

But in the British empire, with all its boasted expanse of territory, the centrifugal forces are rapidly overcoming the centripetal, and this is nowhere more manifest than further than that. We obtained the opinion in Canada. This should be enough to make this country go slow in the matter of exten-

The Negro Discussion.

The Boston Transcript says that while white and negro children go to the same schools in New England they do not associate together, and it goes on to say that while a negro student may be elected to a speaker's place in Harvard, he does not affiliate socially with the other students. To this, it adds, in a sort of triumphant way that there are no negro bank clerks, and no negroes in any line of business where they are likely to come in competition with white men.

Indeed, New England's position in this business is very familiar. Not loving the negro itself, and avoiding him in a business and a social way, it would nevertheless love to see the south love him to the extent of giving him political control of all our affairs and property down here. Just how New England could hope to gain any profit from this state of affairs we cannot understand. The experiment of negro domination has already been tried in the south, and if New England or any other section, or community, or person, ever profited by it we have yet to hear of it.

Is it likely, if the negroes, led by the choice spirits that now manage them, were in control of affairs in one or all of the southern states, that New England or the north would profit by that fact? Judging by the past, we do not see where the profit would come in. First and last, since the democrats have restored honest government in the south, New England capitalists have invested a good deal of capital in the south, and it is hardly probable that these investments would be improved by turning the southern states governments over to the class of men who have the sympathy and confidence of the negro politicians.

The Philadelphia Press, commenting on some remarks in these columns, intimates that the south can get white immigrants from the north only when we permit the negro majority to rule. In other words, according to the Press, when the south is under negro dominion, with its attendant chaos and confusion, then white immigrants from the north will rush hither like doves to a wheat field. As a matter of course, the Press doesn't believe anything of the sort White immigrants are not attracted to com munities where there is bad, ignorant and dishonest government. They didn't flock here when the carpet-baggers and negroes were tearing up things by the roots, and we think the rumors and facts of that desperate period have kept a good many of them away

But there are a great many northern per ple in the south, and, without exception where they are not engaged in taking advantage of the negro in politics, they agree heartily with the southern policy to which the Press objects-and the great majority of them are republicans in national affairs.

Senator Blair's Mistake.

Senator Blair thinks that, because for every dollar spent in educating a child in the south three dollars are spent in the north. there is something wrong, and the schools should have federal aid.

The Chicago Herald very pertinently says Now, the report of the United States cor sioners of education shows that there is a greater difference between the cost of educating a child in two states that join New Hampshire than in the two sections of the country under consideration For every dollar Vermont pays for keeping a child in school a given time, Massachusetts pays more than three dollars. But the people of Vermont ould manifest resentment, and probably would ave good cause to if they were informed that their children were not as well educated as those living in Massachusetts. They would show by the census that the proportion of illiterates in that state was much smaller than in Massachusetts. They would also refer to the fact that most of the men employed to work on farms were able to obtain a certificate to teach school.

It is natural that the people of large cities and towns should spend money lavishly on heir schools and it is equally natural the in small towns and sparsely settled districts the most rigid economy should prevail. But, as our Chicago contemporary sensibly

It does not follow, however, that poor instruction is given in schools that are managed econ ically, as they are in the rural districts, both north and south. Specimons of noble manhood and lovely womanhood are being developed in country schools in Vermont and Georgia at the cost of & per year. Many of them will make the world better by having lived in it. Not a few of them will oc-cupy places of trust and honor in great cities and will be living witnesses to the excellence of coun

The truth is, Senator Btair is an enthu slast on education, and enthusiasts are dis posed to go to extremes. The path of safety, it is unnecessary to say, lies between extremes.

Battenberg's Revolt.

It is generally believed that Prince Henry of Battenberg has cut loose from the Eng lish royal family, with the determination not to return unless his mother-in-law, Queen Victoria, promises to let him alone Prince Henry is supposed to have had a hard time. Queen Victoria has been honest and good all her life, but she is dull, narrowminded, irritable, and not in sympathy with the young. Her son-in-law may have his faults, but it would be impossible for any British queen without having something worse than faults. Under the circumstances, it is an encouraging sign to see the prince go off and refuse to be bullied, and worried and nagged any longer. His own wife will think more of him for it, and the English people will applaud this symptom of self-respecting man to stand the foolish whims of the

Not Defying the Law.

A correspondent in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate undertakes to lecture THE CONSTITUTION about publishing lottery advertisements, saving that it is defying the law in doing so, and that "THE CONSTITU-TION ought to take its own medicine," in urging the supremacy of the kiw. THE CONSTITUTION is not defying the law, and is but one of the many papers in Georgia that are carrying out contracts made long before the passage of the lottery law by the last legislature. As soon as our contracts with the lottery companies expire, we will promptly stop pub lishing their advertisements, because after then it would be contrary to law and order to do so, but when these contracts were made they were sanctioned by the laws of the state. As soon as the legislature passed the law forbidding the publishing of lottery advertisements, THE CONSTITUTION sought the advice of prominent attorneys about carrying out our contracts, and we even went of a number of members of the se where the law originated, as to their intention, and that of the law, concerning exist ing contracts. Without a single exception we were informed by members voting for the bill, that it was not the intention of the law to interfere with existing contracts. After our contracts expire there will no more lottery advertisements in THE Con-stitution, with the law as it now stands forbidding it. Every newspaper in the state has taken the same position.

We may add that we have refused a number of offers for new advertisements from the lottery companies, and will continue to do so.

LITTLE or nothing is said these days about Major Burke, the defaulting treasurer of Louisiana. He is supposed to be hard at work in Honduras developing his mining property, and his friends firmly believe that if he succeeds, he will pay the strte every dollar that is due from him. Unfortunately, mines are very uncertain. and it is quite likely that the major will wind up without a dollar. His defaleation is still a matter of wonder, and while no now denies his guilt, few, i believe that he deliberately defrauded the state. If Burke should get rich and make hi accounts square he would doubtless be permitted to return to Louisiana. But the exile's prospects re not very bright at present.

If we have cold weather from this time on, it is the prevalent belief that the fruit crop will not be damaged in the least. The cold will check the tendency of the trees to brossom until due season, when the whole energy of the trees will be revived. The cold that does the damage to fruit trees comes late in the season after a warm spell of sufficient duration to cause the trees to put forth the tender fruit buds which are nipped by late colds, and the energy of the trees is afterwards expended in foliage. A few more cold snaps may check the disposition to blossom, and the fruit yet be saved.

Paris, February 7.—By prompt action, the government today nipped in the bud what was apparently intended to be a royalist coup d'etat, modeled after Louis Napoleon's mad descent upon Boulogne, and the only conse-quence is that the duke of Orleans, the oldest son of the count of Paris, is tonight in custody. The duke arrived in Paris today, bearing a letter written and signed by the Count de Paris announcing to the faithful and to all the others the count's abdication. He also had with them a manifesto addressed to the people of France. Nominally, and according to the theory of the pretenders, the pretender is always king, and, therefore, the count of Paris abdicates a throne he never possessed. He equently abdicates his claims as pretender, and in virtue of this abdication, all his claims, rights and titles descend to his eldest son, the young gentleman now in the hands of authorities—Phillipe Louis Robert, Duke Orleans. This gentleman is, therefore. young genuenal now in the lands of the authorities—Phillipe Louis Robert, Duke D' Orleans. This gentleman is, therefore, not merely one of the many vagrant princes, but an actual pretender to the throne, in virtue of his claim as heir of Louis Phillippe, and also achieve the city Barneyen line. as heir of the old Bourbon line IT MAY PROVE SERIOUS.

His coming into the country in violation of the law, prohibiting all heads and direct heirs of reigning families, is a rash crime. The fact that he was equiped with an appeal to the nation, shows his intention and may make the escapade serious for him, if it should be developed that this movement is made in virtue veloped that this movement is made in virtue of an understanding with partisans of the monarchy in France. It may be more than a mere violation of the law of expulsion.

There is some reason to believe that the movement is made in concert with more determined opponents of the republic as the duke repaired immediately to the house of Duke D'Luynes, the present head of the family, that has always adhered with uncompromising heroism to the old monarchy. In that house the young gentleman was king of France in theory—the descendant of Henry IV, and not merely the descendant of Louis Phillipi V. On the day before, February 6th, the duke of Orleans attained the age of twentyone, for he was born on February 6, 1869. The abdication of his father, the manifesto and movement were all apparently planned with movement were all apparently planned with regard to that date and in order to electrify France with a demonstration that the fortunes of monarchy were now in new hands; that the crown now belonged on the head of a preux chevalier, who would dare something for it and not fold his hands in quiet concern like another. It was promptly informed of the presence the duke in Paris, and of his whereabouts. It has not yet been developed how much more may be known to the police, but the facts on the surface were sufficient. The duke was in France in violation of a law made purposely for excluding his father and himself as enemiof the republic. This law had been remitted only in favor of the Duke D'Aumale. Therefore, D'Orleans was at once arrested at the house of Duke D'Luynes. He was taken to the prefecture of police, where his identity was fixed beyond all doubt, and where a process verbal of his violation of the law of banishment was drawn up. He was then detained at the Conciergerie, famous as the place of detention for royalty in distress. In the afternoon he was arraigned before will take the central take the central control of the law of banishment was a straigned before central take the central control of the law of banishment was a straigned before central take the central central control of the law of banishment was a straigned before central cen of the republic. of the military authorities.

This dash of audacity is regarded as a very happy stroke, and is sure to make friends for him, for a gallant French boy who wants to take his chances for conscription is a somewhat unusual and captivating figure to appear in the daily news. But this did not touch the sensibilities of the hard-hearted authorities, and M. Constant minister of the interior ordered that Constans, minister of the interior, ordered that the duke be held in custody. Further dispo-sition of the case will, of course, depend upon whether it is discovered that there was any plot for a general royalist movement behind

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: I have been much interested in your editorial this morning on Indian corn in Europe. I have had considerable personal experience in efforts to have it used. During the nt famine in Ireland, in 1879-80, I did all could to have it introduced as a bread food in Ir land, I had a very large fund at my disp (about $70,000) most of which came from what I called in my published report of receipts and expenditures, munificent America. The great difficulty was: First, the inferior quality of the corn as far as it came under my personal observation; and next, but not least, the difficulty of finding fuel to cook it. and next, but not least, the difficulty of finding fuel to cook it. As the subject is one of national, and I may say European importance, I will say a word on both subjects.

I am afraid the corn was deliberately deteriorated in order to discourage its use; I know that much of it which found its way to Ireland was truly only fit to feed horses, as I stated at the time in letters to the London press for which I then wrote, and to a special deputation which was sent to me to Kenmare convent from New-Castle-on-Tyne, England, on the subject of food supplies. It is important that those who have control of the Indian corn exhibit, in the Edinburg exposition, should show only the best qualities. I may add that I shall be very happy to give any information which I can to gentiemen interested in this matter. I can also give introductions to Sir Ralph Cusack, who is chairman of the Great Western railroad line in Ireland, and is intensely interested in all that may benefit the country, and to Mr. Bindon Stoney, who is chairman of the board of port and docks board in Dublin, both being my near lelatives.

With regard to the second difficulty, the want of fuel to cook the Indian corn—I can only say I shall not be surprised if I am suspected of exaggeration in my statements, but the facts are these. A famine year in Ireland is always a wet year—turf is the ordinary fuel of the poor, and how poor Ireland is, many of your readers may know personally. When the turf is wet, there is an end of fuel for there is no lumber. Moreover, if a poor man cuts as much as a small stick from a hedge, he is fined and an end of fuel for there is no lumber. Moreover, if a poor man cuts as much as a small stick from a hedge, he is fined and imprisoned. In fact, the imprisonment is the punishment, for how can he pay a fine? I do not think it would be possible to estimate the privations suffered from want of fuel in a famine year. I have, myself. known the poor, again and again, to eat the Indian corn uncooked, or after a few hours' soaking in cold water. Is it, then, any wonder that Indian male, or "yallow male" (meal), as it is called, is looked upon with utter disgust? During this famine period I had a letter from a lady urging me strongly to introduce she use of lentile in Ireland, as she said they were so neurishers.

fing, and only required about four hours' boiling to be quite palatable. When I wrote in reply that there was a famine of fuel as well as of potatoes. I think she came to the conclusion that I was amusing myself at her expense. But it was a factall the same.

Why this chronic state of misery and distress exists in Ireland is another question, on which, for the present, I do not touch.

I shall be pleased to show the only copy I have with me of my "Famine Relief Report" to any one who is interested in the subject, and to give any information which may be thought useful. Faithfully yours, M.F. Cusack, The Nun of Kenmare.

THE COTTON MARKET.

The Highest Prices of the Season Touch

The bears were not so jubilant yesterday as the Tuesday last, when the market sh signs of weakening under the pressure of heavy receipts, with prospects of a continued heavy movement throughout the week.

Receipts for Tuesday were about 34,000 bales;
Wednesday about 20,000 bales, and Thursday dropped to 18,000 bales. This was more than the bears could stand, and they commenced to cover, and the advance that set in Wednesday has continued until the close yesterday, the highest prices of the season being touched just before the close. The market opened from four to ten points close. The market opened from four to ten points higher this morning, and continued to advance without interruption of consequence till near the close, the highest point showing an advance of eighteen to twenty points over the closing of last evening, and thirteen to fifteen points over the lowest for like day.

The bulls say the advance will continue, that receipts will now show a marked decrease as compared with last year, and that American stocks already show a decrease that cannot be overcome. "It is true that the stock in Liverpool is largely arready show a decrease that cannot be overcome.

After its true that the stock in Liverpool is largely in excess of last year," said one of them. "But they will need more over there, and in our opinion they will have to pay for it at advanced figures. We look for cotton to go to 12½ cents. The bears estimate the receiptsd for the week at 150,000 bales. They missed it only 11,000 bales."

A bear, commenting on the situation, said: "The bears, on account of short receipts, for the moment, became frightened, and buying to cover put the market up considerably, which we consider only temporary. With bright, good weather receipts will doubtless increase, and we look for a sharp decline in the near future. The figures are against us now, but we are bound to have our day."

CHICAGO, February 7 .- George Kennan, now lecturing here on Siberia, has given to the Associated Press a resume of the voluminous cor-respondence lately received by him relating to the massacree of Russians and administrative exiles at Yakutsk on April 3d last, the occurrence of which has been hitherto strenuously denied by the Russian government. One of these letters, written by a survivor of the affair, is sixty-one pages in length and sets forth with great exactness of detail every particular of the massacre and events leading up to and immediately preceding and succeeding it. Mr. Kennan declared the communications to be of a most impartial character and even nnimpassioned in tone, and said they were to be relied on, but he withheld the names of his correspondents, as the publication of their names would involve them in trouble with the Russian administration.

The story of Mr. Kennan's correspondent agree, in many particulars, with the account published in the London Times, but gives in addition many tales hitherto unknown, and the

and the language of the writers is most graphic.

"It appears," said Mr. Kennan, "that towards the latter part of February last, thirty-three political prisoners on their way to Verkhoyansk and Sredni-Kolymsk were quartered temporarily at Yakutsk, the first named place being distant from St. Peters-burg 6,390 and 7,518 miles, respectively, in a purg 0,530 and 7,518 miles, respectively, in a part of Siberia so remote from civilization that it is seldom, if ever, visited by human beings. Verkhoyansk is the first village to which the survivors of the Jeannette came after they left Lena Delta. Both places lay close to the arctic circle. Communication is maintained between these two villages by means of reindeer sledges."

Mr. Kennan's correspondents write that the former governor of the province of Yakutsk, General Svetletsk, had done all in his power to see that exiles in his charge were forwarded as comfortably as possible to this inhospitable region, but he being promoted to the government of the province of Irkutsk, his successor, General Ostaskin, who assumed office temporarily in March last, gave great disastisfaction to the exiles by the announcement of certain and cruel arbitrary rules, which prevented their proper equipment for their journey. Under the Russian penal code it is a criminal offense for political exiles to unite in a petition for a redress of grievances. Each exile, therefore, prepared a separate petition and presented it at the office of the provincial administration. The letters go on to tell how they were directed to assemble in the house of one of the exiles, and when there, were told that the governor regarded their individual petitions as merely an evasion of law, wad their action equivalent to open rebellion.

"At ten o'clock the next day," writes one of the actual participants in the dreadful affair, "we met again in Notkin's house to the number of thirty-three. At half past ten o'clock the police overseer, Olesof, brought a verbal order that all exiles present were to come to the police station. We thought that there must be some misunderstanding, as we were waiting, by orders of the chief of police. Olesof turned on his heel, saying:

"Then I understand you won't come."

We said no such thing; but they wanted to know from the chief of police what he expected them to do. A company of Cossacks, numbering over a hundred men, under command of an officer manned Karamsin, then appeared, battered cown the gates of the courtyard and fifteen or twenty of them entered the house while others surrounded it. The officers who entered with the soldiers were Chief of Police Souchakef, Captain Vaschef, local commander of the whole Cossack force in the town, and Olesof, police overseer. Karamsin, in command of the then poured their fire through the doors and windows. Schur, one of our members, rushed into the 'courtyard crying, 'We surrender,' but was shot dead a short distance from the door. Prodbetski, who heard the firing and ran to the housetop to see what the matter was, was shot dead by the courtyard gang. He was not implicated in the affair in any way, and was within two months of the termination of his exile. Joseph Estrovich, already wounded, rushed into the courtyard, fell, and was repeatedly bayonetted as he lay on the ground.

"As a result of this affray, six of us, including one woman, were killed outright. This woman's stomach was all torn open by a bayonet. All the rest of us were more or less woman's stomach was all torn open by a bayonet. All the rost of us were more or less injured. At the first Iull in the firing Sponhouse Zoloff ran out into the courtyard; it does not appear for what purpose. There he saw Governer Ostashkin, who had arrived and whom he doubtless believed responsible for the killing of his friends. He drew his revolver and fired two shots at him. But for this, there might have been more shooting. Zolof, however, wounded the governor, and the soldiers recommenced firing into the bouse. After two or volleys the firing was stopped by Captain Noghef. The government casualties one soldier killed and a soldier slightly wounded. The exiles killed and a soldier slightly wounded. The exiles killed were Zergius Perk, Zeophie Gurvith, Pani Patbelski, Peter Mukhanof, Gregory, Shura and Jacob Notkin. Twelve others were seriously wounded. Three months later the survivors were tried by court-martial on the charge of armed resistance. This court-martial was composed as follows: President, Lieutenant-Colonel Savilska; Captain Korsakof, Captain Tiagunof Tiagunof, Sub-Captain Yerkmakof and one Fedors. The trial began on the 6th day of June. The following questions were put to each of the prisoners at the trial by the presining officer:

"What is your name, age and religion?' and the prisoner replied:

"'Do you observe the ceremonies of religion?'

"Yans.—Since the day of our arrest, no!

tigion?'
"'Ans.--Since the day of our arrest, no.'
"'Do you adhere to your statements made at the preliminary examination?' (The statements were read over again to the prisoner, and he replies "Yos.")
"'You are accused of armed resistance to the authorities. What have you to say?'
"'Ans.--Upon what is this accusation founded?'

"Ans.—Upon what is this accusation founded?"
"The court is not obliged to inform you."
"The Prisoner—Presence in the house is not proof of the accusation. I was there, but I did not make any armed resistance. I don't know why I have been implicated in this affair."

""The Court—It is out of place to teach the court. Speak more briefly. Have you anything more to say?"
"Aus.—I think not."

"'Ans.—I think not.'
"'Officer—You can go.'
"Beyond this," says one of Mr. Kennan's correspondents, "prisoners were allowed to say nothing in their own behalf." Three of the prisoners were hauged. Kohan Bernstein, who had been severely wounded and was unable to stand, was taken to the scaffold an a cot bed from the hospital, a noose put around his neck and the cot pulled from under him. He was choked to death. Fourteen others, including four women, were sentenced for different terms, runging from ten to lifteen years.

"I consider that this information received from Russia," said Mr. Kennan, "so minute and circumstantial in every detail, and knowing the reliebility of its source to be a complete and conclusive answer to the recent strenuous denials of the Russian government which were publised in the New York Tribune about two weeks are.

publised in the New York Tribune about two weeks ago.

William Sallett, president of the great Howard association, of England, says that every effort will be made to bring this matter before the international prison congress, which will meet in St. Petersburg. If the Russian government will permit it and is ready to meet the issue, I will undertake to prove before this prison congress every charge that I have arrayed against it in my articles published in the Century, or which have been etherwise brought fotward by me. In substantiation of these charges I am prepared to bring my witnesses from Siberia, and to defray the whole expense of such proceedings, but I much fear that my challenges will be ignored."

Trying to Forestall the Requisition. Trying to Forestall the Requisition.

During the afternoon General Philips made an effort to prevent Wyly's surrender to the Alabama authorities. A messenger was sent to Governor Gordon, explaining that Wylie had once been tried for complicity in the Hawes murder, and as not sufficient evidence could be produced against him, he had been discharged. Judge Philips message tried to persuade the governor that under the circumstances there was no necessity of honoring a requisition. The governor explained his position in a few words. He told the messenger that in the first place at that time the messenger that in the first place at that time no requisition had been received, and in the sec-ond place, where a man was accused of murder, he could under no circumstances refuse to recog-nize a demand for extradition.

The Police Stopped the Fight During the Fourth Round.

LONDON, February 7.-The match between Mitchell and Mace was short and decisive. It was fought in four rounds of two minutes each. Neither men had trained much. Two thousand persons witnessed it, and a large number of high-priced aristocrats gathered around the ring. The police at first objected, but yielded gracefully when it was explained that the match was purely to determine points of the match was purely to determine points of the sparring style and fistic skill. Mace was twice knocked down. The police interfered during the progress of the fourth round and stopped the fight. Judges pronounced in favor of Mitchell. It was very interesting. Clever Mace was capital, but lacked the nimble readiness of former days. He broke the little finger of his left hand in the first round. Both hit very hard, though no blood was drawn.

Oyster Pirates Captured.

RALEIGH, N. C., February 7.—[Special.]—A report has been received from Conyock, N. C., which shows that a large capture of Virginia oyster pirates has been made. The report is made by the commander of the armed vessel, Nonia. as they tried to go through the canal. They arrested all the captains, carried them before a magistrate. They were heavily fined, and promised to let the oysters alone in North Carolina. We predict another fleet tomorrow. We shall stop them. We expect a fight and are prepared for it.

Hurrying Them Up. Hurrying Them Up.

ALBANY, N. Y. February 7.—Governor Hill this afternoon sent a special message to the legislature urging it to pass the world's fair bill at once and without amendment. He states that he is ready to sign the bill at once should it be passed in its original shape, but he does not make it clear that he would oppose the measure could the senate amendment be added. He calls attention to the fact that delay is serious, endangering the chances of New York in congress.

Mr. Whiteside Resigns.
Chattanooga, Tenn., February 7.—[Special.]—City Auditor V. S. Whiteside has finally insisted upon his resignation being accepted by the city council, which was done last Tuesday night. He will accept the position of superintendent of the Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain railroad. Mr. Whiteside's successor is J. H. Messick, who, for several years, has been deputy county court clerk. A Bold Burglary.

When the black watch went on duty at midnight, Patrolman Harper found a window broken in the front of Sibley & Co.'s wholesale house, on North Forsyth street. Captain Thompson was immediately notified, and Call Officer Abbott rode out to Mr. R. E. Sibley's home and obtained the key to the store. On investigation it was found that the lower half of the window had been smashed in, and a barefoot track was observable on the counter inside and on the floor. A half burned candle placed in a box, so that it would not be seen from the street, was found about midway in the store. From all the evidences that could be discovered the burglar was a sneak thief, and con-

The burglary was evidently committed during or just after the rainstorm, as the footprints were in splashes of mud from the street. No estimate of the loss could be made, because of the absence of the preprinters.

A Young Lady's Death. A Young Lady's Death.

Miss Ella Rogers, daughter of Rev. B. P. Rogers, died at her father's home in Salt Springs yesterday afternoon, after suffering for seven or eight month's illness with consumption. Prior to that time she was perfectly healthy, and was highly educated and accomplished. She was a musician of a high order, and was organist of the Methodist church at Salt Springs. She was just twenty years old, and her death is mourned by a large circle of friends who knew and loved her. The funeral will occur today in this city at nine o'clock.

PATROLMAN JIM LACKEY KNOCKED

anding Under an Awning, the Electric Current Strikes the Wires Overhead, and a Shock Is Communicated to His Body.

A policeman was struck down by lightning last night. About 10:30 o'clock a terrible thunderstorm burst upon the city, and the premonitory shock was a blinding flash of lightning and a stunning crash of thunder.

Patrolman James Lackey was on his beat, on Mitchell street, and saw the cloud coming. He blew his whistle for Patrolman Mewbern, his partner, who was on the opposite side of the street. The latter answered, and crossed the street. About that time a perfect deluge of rain began falling, and Patrolman Lackey stepped under an awning in front of Fincher's store, where he was joined by Mewbern.

"I am afraid of these wires," remarked Lackey, placing his hand on the wall of the Scarcely had the words been uttered, when

THERE WAS A BLINDING FLASH, and Patrolman Mewbern staggered backward, shocked and blinded, but was able to see Lackey turn around and fall to the pavement. So soon as Mewbern could recover himself he rushed to the side of his fallen comrade, whom he found unconscious.

He hastily gave the alarm, and a number of young men, who were at a party at Dobbs's

Dr. A. S. Bridwell was summoned, and the fallen man was carried to his office, across the street, and the physician went to work to restore him to consciousness. In a few minutes Lackey began to recover, and although he was terribly shocked it was found that no bones were broken, nor were there any signs of the stroke on his person. TAKEN TO HIS HOME.

The stationhouse was telephoned and a number of policemen hastened to his assistance. A hack was secured and he was sent to his home on McAfee street. He was able to sit up, but was so dazed that he could hardly give any account of how it happened. Dr. Bridwell thought that he would soon recover from the effects of the hock, and that no evil effects would follow.

At a late hour he was resting well.

The cause of the shock was evidently the lightning striking the network of telephone lightning striking the network of telephone and electric light wires overhead. The damp wall of the building furnished an excellent conductor, and by that means the shock was communicated to the policeman through the hand that he placed against the wall.

The same stroke extinguished the lights in the second story of the stationhouse, and several lamps in other portions of the city.

The hereditary scrofulous taint afflicts the large majority of people, while many others acquire diseases from impure air, improper food and wrong indulgences. Hence the imperative necessity for a reliable blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which eradicates every impurity, and gives to the blood vitality and health. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, humors, boils, pimples, and all other affections caused by impurities or poisonous germs in the blood. All that is asked for Hood's Sarsaparilly is that it be given a fair trial.

SUE THE RICHMOND AND DANVILLE FOR $20,000 EACH.

One Sang and Danced to Amuse His Fellow-Travelers and the Other Laid Awake Man Nights Thinking of That "Awful Night."

Two twenty thousand dollar damage suits were filed against the Richmond and Danville were filed against the Richmond and Danville railroad company yesterday.

Both plaintiffs are negroes—one a preacher. They want twenty thousand dollars apiece because of indignities and humiliations, which they claim to have received at the hands of passengers on the Air-Line "Bell" last May. The preacher says he had to sing and dance to keep from being injured, probably killed, by the said passengers.

by the said passengers.

The other plaintiff claims that he was so roughly handled and so badly frightened that he laid awake many nights thereafter, thinking of "that awful ride."

J. C. Carey is the name of the preacher, and Robert Jefferson that of his fellow-sufferer. Both petitions are similarly drawn, except as to a few minor details of the evolutions alleged to have been performed by the plaintiffs in the aisle of the coach.

Carey says that on May 30th last he bought a first-class ticket from Atlanta to Athens, where he was bound to attend a conference meeting. He took a seat in the car set apart for people of his race. He says he recognized his color and governed his conduct accord-reached Norcross two drunken white men got aboard. Both had pistols in their hands, and soon after entering the car in which the petitioner was seated, ordered him to vacate. Carey says one of the men put his pistol close to his face, and jobbed him in the breast with its muzzle several times. He complains that he was badly frightened, and begged the men not to force him to leave the train, which was moving forty miles an hour. The men finally agreed to allow him to remain if he would dance and sing for them.

"And I danced and sang," he says in his bill. He further avers that during this performance the conductor of the train stood by and laughed, when he should have interfered to prevent the indignities which were being perpetrated upon him. At Gainesville the men got off the train, and the preacher pursued his journey in peace and quiet.

The plaintiff says he suffered great bodily and mental agony, and that he did not recover his peace of mind for many days thereafter.

He thinks his feelings were damaged twenty thousand dollars' worth.

Jefferson, the other sable plaintiff, does not mention anything about singing and dancing for the edification of the passengers in his petition, but alleges that he was roughly handled by the two mirthful pistol-toaters, who were so boisterous in their antics, that he lay awake many nights afterward thinking of them, fearful in his im-agination but they should be repeated. He thinks his humiliation and loss of sleep is worh

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The stock market was dull today outside of Reading stock, which furnished nearly one-half the transactions in the listed stocks for the day. Interest in Reading overshadowed completely the remainder of the list, and while there was a firm tone pregalent during west of the day it was not until the last hour ing most of the day, it was not until the last hour that any animation was shown, and all advances were made at that time. Trading in Reading especially during the forenoon, was enormous, and the price was steadily and rapidly advanced from 411/4 to 431/4, without a break. The movement cul-41½ to 43½, without a break. The movement cul-minated at that figure, and a reaction occurred. There are several opinions as to the cause of the rise, and the theory that both the supporters and opponents of the management were buying which incidentally squeezed the shorts, but the general impression was that the bull clique in stock was simply forcing the shorts to cover. Traders, of course, helped along the to cover. Traders, of course, helped along the rise and rumors of the existance of large stop orders at forty-two helped the first advance to that figure. When the movement culminated the traders quickly realized and the price went back traders quickly realized and the price went back to 42½. At 43¼ the stock was for some time above third incomes, but the latter soon rose to 44½, while the stock afterwards went back. The theory that some large operators had been caught short obtained many believers and the names of Cammack, White and Gould were mentioned as unfortunate. one, but it was conjecture only. In the last hour, Lackawanna, helped by colder weather and rumors of prosperity among its western lines, rumors of prosperity among its western lines, with Missouri Pacific and Lake[Shore, moved up sharply, the movement being accompanied by a marked increase in activity. The upward move-ment at this time, however, extended to all the ment at this time, however, extended to all the list and the close was strong generally at about the highest prices. Among the specialties which showed marked strength was Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, which upon the advices of successful placing of extension bonds of the company in London, soon recovered the dividend. These bonds, like those of the Norfolk and Western, were subscribed twice over. Outside of extraordinary strength in Colorado coal, the general list presented abso

Final changes are almost entirely in an upward direction, and Colorado coal is up 2, Lackawanna 1½, and others fractions. Trading in listed stocks reached 244,759 shares, of which Reading was for 12,890. Unlisted, 25,000.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The following are the otal net receipts of cotton at all United States orts since September 1, 1889: New York. Newport News.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, February 7-[Special.]—The cotton narket today has alarmed the most courageous bear, and exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine bull, by an advance of 17 points over yesterday's closing figures. The cause of the improvement is not apparent to the superficial observer, and the demand which has resulted in the advance appears to have come mainly from the short side of the market, and does not repre-sent, so far as we are able to determine, any widespread increase of confidence in the intrinsic value of the article. Liverpool opened this morn-ing at an improvement of 3-64, as compared with last evening's figures, and closed firm at a further improvement of 1-64. The trading at the opening improvement of 1-64. The trading at the opening here was upon the basis of about 7 points improvement over yesterday's close, and until noon it looked as if this advance about marked the top for the present. A lighter interior movement than was expected seemed, however, to have increased the timidity of the bears, and they at once started to cover their short contracts, in doing which they advanced the market 10 points. Interior receipts promise to be about 36,000, but the shipments are small, and the plantation movement will probably be not less than 125,000. Receipts for the week aggregate 150,000, and for the next week are estimated at 125,000, against 134,000 last year, which was, however, an exceptionally large movement. The further course of the market depends entirely upon the magnitude of the short interest, which it seems impossible to estimate, although it has undoubtedly been very much reduced today.

HUBBARD PRICE & CO.

Henry Clews & Co.'s Circular.

Henry Clews & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, February 7—[Special.]—From a bull standpoint today was the day of days in cotton market because there was a net advance of about 20 points established throughout the various list of options, while the rates for spot cotton were advanced 9-16e from yesterday's prices, and the highest range of values for the crop were reached. The advance was started at the opening, when the first prices shows a gain of about 6 points influenced by firmer Liverpool advices and the prospect of lighter receipts at the ports, and from that time up to the close the advance was steady. The confirmation of yesterday's report of intended heavy shipments of cotton from this port te Europe, through the engagement of freight room, coupled with the falling off in the interior movement, led to a general buying movement for both long and short account, particularly for the latter, and as holders were rather disposed to sell only moderately, the rise was rapid and attended at times with no little excitement. The close was firm, although 2 points of the advance was lost on some realizing. As mentioned above spot cotton was also strong and advanced 3-16e on sales of 229 bales. The southern markets were also firm and generally higher.

The opening was ½ ½ ½ clower than yesterday, eased off ½ cmore, recovered again, selling to outside prices and closed ½ clower than yesterday. The decline here yesterday had a tendency to change the feeling abroad, and foreign advices generally noted a quiet and easier tone. The principal weakening feature was a snow-storm, which it is claimed was quite general over the winter wheat belt.

The Chattanooga, Gadsden and Birmingham, and the Chattanooga Southern—Abbeville and Waycross. Captain John Hart is booming his railroad. At present it extends from Union Point to White Piains.

The road is bound to be extended soon, and from present appearances the extension may be made this year. The plan is to go almost in an airline from White Plains to Tennille, on the Central. That would carry it through Greene, Hancock, and Washington counties, It would pass through Sparta and Sandersville

"Hancock county is willing to bear her propertionate part of the cost of a survey. If Washington county and Greene will do the same, arrangements will be made to place within the next thirty days a competent surveying corps in the field to secure the needed and the saying:

Chattanooga, Gadsden and Birmingham. Mr. J. C. Henderson, president of this road, is

"I will state positively, and you can rely upon the information, that we will begin to build within the next thirty days. Our line will run through the Thomas, Henrietta and Debardeleben coal properties to Henrietta station and will then come into Birmingham on the Louisville and Nashville. We have our financial arrangements all completed and will build a short line from Birmingham through Gadsden to Chattanooga.

"We have the charter, and if the Chattanooga Southern does not build at once we will put the line clear through, as fast as men and money can

"As to the line to Piedmont there is every probability that it will be built, and as to the main line from Birmingham to Chattanooga, is a cer-tainty, and actual work will be commenced with-

The Chattanooga Southern. The Chattanooga Southern.

Mr. John W. James, superintendent of the Chattanooga Southern, says:

"The-Chattanooga Southern is now located for a distance of about wenty-five miles, taking in Eagle Tilf, High Point, and contemplating Frick's Gap and Catlet's Gap at Pigeon mountain, following up the valley, to the east of Lockout mountain. The two lines we have run to Pigeon mountain will come together again just beyond the mountain. One delay in work now is solely for the purpose of making financial arrangements, for we have no such aid, by way of donations, as railroads usually do."

Abbeville and Waveross.

Abbeville and Waycross.

Several months ago THE CONSTITUTION gave the plan for a railroad from the present terminus of the Atlanta and Florida to Waycross.

This new road, with the road already constructed, would make an air-line route from Atstructed, would make an air-line route from Avlanta to Jacksonville.

A few weeks later the Abbeville would have been on the road from Fort Valley to Wayeross, and the building of the road from Abbeville to Wayeross makes almost certain the early extension of the Atlanta and Florida, or the building of an independent line, from Fort Valley to Abbeville.

Any step in this direction is important to Atlanta, as helping to make the Atlanta and Florida instead of a local road—a through line to Jacksonville.

And in the meantime the Abbeville and Waycross project is pushing on to success.

"The surveying corps arrived at Sihble two-weeks ago, and are working toward Douglas, In Coffee county. Colonel Watts, the atnorney for the road, traveled over the route several days ago, looking at the country and taking subscriptions. He is highly pleased with the prospect, and says the people along the route are anxious for it."

The Accents Gibson and Sandersville.

The Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville. It is said that the project of extending this road to Florida is again under discussion.

The control of the road is now in the hands of the West Point Terminal, and the talk of extension is especially significant in connection with the fact that the Augusta and West Florida is now being built from Augusta southwest toward Florida.

It was recently proposed to buy the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville and the Wrightsville and Tennille and Wrightsville and Dublin, and build from Dublin to Titon.

Then the Georgia, Southern and Fiorida branch from Tifton to Thomasville would complete the line from Augusta to Thomasville.

The failure of this movement may probably be explained by the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville stock being even then, a majority of it, in the hands of the Terminal company.

Central Improvements.

Central Improvements.

A building $50x200, one story high, costing $8,000 is to be added to the Central shops in Macon.

Work is to begin this week.

Work has been commenced at Macon for 200 new freight cars and flats, which will be finished in April. Several new passenger coaches are nearly completed, and will be put on the road by the 1st of March. Central Improvements.

The Darien Short Line.

Thejsecond cargo of rails for this road are all down, making over eleven miles of track right out in one of the densest pine thickets in this country. This land, much of it is owned by the Hilton, Dodge combination. They are now putting in a side track at Belleville, the present terminus of the road, preparatory to bringing the timber to market. The timber will be dumped into the river at this point, rafted and then drifted or towed to their mills at Darien and St. Simons. There are now a large number of teams in the woods hauling this timber to the road ready for the cars.

The third cargo of railroad iron is expected soon and will be put down as soon as landed.

Four Lines to Macon.

When the Middle Georgia and Atlantic reaches Atlanta there will be four lines from Atlanta to Conductor Jim Story, of the Central, now acting as assistant master of trains, has been off duty for a week on account of the grip.

Mr. D. D. Curran, the new superintendent of the Savannah and Western, is just out of bed from a week's illness. The grip.

It is understood that Mr. W. J. Haylow, whose resignation as superintendent of the Southwestern division, headquarters Columbus, went into effect Wednesday, has been reappointed to his old position as superintendent of transportation of the Alabama Midland railroad.

Mr. T. W. Garrett, the new East Tennessee freight depot agent, who succeeds Mr. Taylor here, resigned the position of master of trains at Knoxville. His successor in that position has not yet been appointed. Train Dispatcher Toyall is at present doing the work.

The Athens Banner says: "It is a rumor now going the rounds that the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, the Covington and Macon, and the Georgia Southern and Florida will be joined, forming one enormous, combined through line from the northeast to the southern part of Florida. The reason for such a rumor is, perhaps, due to the fact that Brown Bros. the noted bankers of Baltimore, own a controlling interest in the Covington and Macon and Macon and Macon and Macon and Macon, and these contral point. It is said that the Georgia Southern and Florida is now at work extending their road around Macon, to connect with the Covington and Macon, and this tends to further the rumor of the combine."

The change of schedule on the East Tennessee goes into effect tomorrow.

Arrangements are now being made for an important change of schedule on the Chattanooga, goes into effect tomorrow.

Arrangements are now being made for an important change of schedule on the Chattanooga Rome and Columbus road. It is intended to put on a double daily passenger service between Chattanooga and Carrellton.

One of the Machines at the Electric Light Works Burned Out by Lightning.
At haif past ten last night an electric storm of great severity broke over the city.
From the early hours of thesevening the air seemed heavy and was evidently charged with electricity. Later on this suddenly declared itself in one blinding blast at the beginning of fhe storm. Several larger flashes followed and the storm then wound up in a terrific flash of lightning.

Simultaneously with the glare of the lightning simultaneously with the glare of the lighting the electric lights in some parts of the city went out, and it was evident that some damage had been done. It was discovered that one of the machines at the electric light works had been burned out and for the remainder of the night the part of the city which obtains its light from that circuit was in darkness.

"It's only a question of time," and a short time, too, as to when your rheumatism will yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it. GREAT DANGER.

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in Regard to Them.
When the Creator in His wrath (or for His When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its rayees and desperant to life robbing one in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing on of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftenwithout eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you.
I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory resulfs. Many ladies are affected with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. Respectfully. Dr. R. G. Jackson.

The United States Life Insurance Company. In another column will be found the seminnual statement of the United States Life Insurand a scalement of the United States life insur-ance company, of New York.

A gain of $350,000 in assets, a proportionate gain in surplus, and a gain of $5,000,000 in insur-ance in force during the past year certainly indi-cates prosperity in its broadest sense, and must be most gratifying to its numerous southern policy holders.

The policies issued by this company are fully abreast of modern demands, containing all the latest features and being simple in language and form. Their re-newable policy furnishes insurance at cost, requiring an outlay of only about one-half that of ordinary life insurance.

Mr. F. B. Shepard, their southern manager, has been associated with the company for many years, and is rapidly building up a large business in this agency.

SALESMAN—Yes, this is the stove you inquired for. As you say, it does not look exactly like the one your nother recommended you to buy, and which she thinks so much of, but it is a Charter Oak Runge. We have the Cook Stoves of the same make but the Ranges are used more generally now, as they are more convenient. How long has your mother had her stove? Young Markited Lady—Oh! ever so long. She bought it when I was a baby, and has been using it ever since, and she told me I must get the same kind.

SALESMAN—Well, this is the same kind. That is, it is a Charter Oak, but you must remember that twenty years is a long time, and improvements have been made since your mother got hers. This Range has the wonderful Wire Gauze Oven Boor, which you have probably beard of, as it is known and sold everywhere in connection with our Stoves and Ranges.

YOUNG MARKIED LADY—Oh! I remember now. She spoke about the, but I can't understand why that should make it so much better than our old stove, as that was as good as it could be.

SALESMAN—There is no doubt about its being much better; it is a wonderful improvement. It bakes everything so much nicer, and the meats are not dried up like they are in the old fashioned tight ovens. Why, a steak can be broiled in that oven as perfectly as over a charcoal fire, and the natural juices of the meat, which make it so appetizing, will all be retained. It is just the same with roast meats. Of course, it is needless for me to speak of its other good qualities, as your mother's advice has made that unnecessary.

Young Married Lady—Well, of course, I will take it. Please have it put up as soon as you can, as we have no stove yet. We are just commencing housekeeping, you know.

Charter Oak Stoves and Ranges with Wire Gauze Oven Doors, are Manufactured by the Excelsior Manufacturing Co., St. Louis, Mo., and Sold by MUNNICUTT & BELLINGRATH, Sole Agts., Atlanta, Ga.

THE ARTESIAN WELL.

MR. JOEL HURT SAYS ABANDON THE ARTESIAN WELL.

He Thinks Colonel Baum Knows How to Bore a Well, But That He Does Not Know Anything About Geology. The artesian well again. This time a well known and prominent Atlantian opposes the expenditure of more

It is Mr. Joel Hurt. Mr. Hurt was once a member of the water board, and gave the entire water system a careful study. The artesian well came in for a thorough investigation, and Mr. Hurt is well advised. Yesterday he said:

"I see that a proposition to spend more money on the artesian well has been favorably considered by the board of water commission-

"Yes, the board has decided to bring the water from the bottom of the well," "Under whose advice is the proposition accepted that it is practicable to cut off all streams above the eleven-hundred-feet vein? Have the commissioners consulted Mr. Baum and Mr. J. C. Kimball alone, or have they obtained the opinions of competent geologists, who have made a life-time study of this question and who, above all me, should be contion, and who, above all men, should be con-sulted first?"

"Don't know about that."
"I am quite sure that no reputable geologist has expressed the opinion that the surface water can be excluded from the well. Nevertheless, Mr. Baum's opinion looking to a further expenditure of money has had great weight."

weight."
"Doesn't Mr. Baum know?"
"I am quite sure he understands boring a well and this seems to be his fort, but when he undertakes to explain the formation of the rocks and what may be expected in the granite formation underlying Atlanta, he is decidedly out of his element. I have discussed this matter with him and had as soon depend upon the old well digger who twists a crooked stick to determine where a flowing well can be found."

be found."

"Doesn't he understand it?"

"The granite formation underlying Atlanta is a melamorphic rock which, having been subjected to great heat, has been baked, as if it were, into a compact mass. While the heat was being given off this compact mass of granite, cracas became necessary. The cracks, or veins, are represented now by irregular sheets or fissures of quartz thrown from the earth's interior. They run in all directions along the surface, and all have an inclination towards the center of the earth. They are of all sizes, and form in some localities a network of veins. The water formed in these fissures always comes from the surface earth lying immediately above and in close proximity to the out-cropping. As these fissures cross each other in all directions and at any depth, the water which is drawn from one at whatever depth is most likely supplied by numerous fissures all receiving their meager supply from the surface. It is absolutely preposterous to suppose that within this granite there can be a horizontal sheet of water flowing through the rock having its source in some distant hills, and that it is independent of surface drainage. It would like to know if there is an educated geologist in America who will hold such a theory."

"Is this true?"

"Certainly. It is not speculation but is the inevitable conclusion from observations in deep mining shafts, in tunnels and numerous "Doesn't he understand it?"

nevitable conclusion from observations in leep mining shafts, in tunnels and numerous other excavations throughout the civilized world. The vein which Mr. Baum proposes to utilize at a depth of 1,100 feet is very likely extending in a direction almost parallel to the line of the well and is doubtless supplied by one hundred other fissures extending

"But can't the surface water be shut out?"

"But can't the surface water be shut out?"

"To do so—to shut out all surface water from the well would require to case it to the bottom, and the casing to be plugged at the bottom. But suppose the commissioners should succeed, what have they gained? It costs the city about five times as much to furfish a gallon of water from this well as it costs to furnish the same amount of much better water from the mains. If it be necessary to furnish people water free through the artesian pipes, and most of these pipes are on streets already supplied with the city mains, why not attach the artesian pipes to the city mains, and reduce expenses thereby. But there is another and important view to take of this matter."

"What is that?"

"This. There are now before the water

"This. There are now before the water board, from a great many citizens on many of the important streets of Atlanta, petitions urging the extension of the water mains to meet the actual necessities of a comfortable home. I understand that nearly all of these petitions have been favored by the board. But to lay the pipes would require $50,000 to be added to the meager allowance for this year. Would it not be wise policy to stop spending money on this well, which has cost the city about fifty thousand dollars, and apply the appropriations to supply water to citizens who have been petitioning for years and for which they are willing to pay? Atlanta has made an experiment in the face of the advice of her best informed citizens, and the experiment has proven a failure. This was done to gratify sentiment. Since sentiment on this line is vanished, why not stop the waste of money?" "This. There are now before the water "In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarasparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether.
